The Family Choice
Where Play is Fundamental

Free, imaginative play is crucial for normal, social, and cognitive development. It makes us better adjusted, smarter, and supports today’s brain research on learning.

Play is Foundational
Play has a special role in childhood. Play develops skills that are essential if children are to learn and be successful learners later in life. Children use play to make sense of their world and organize their thoughts. Through play, children develop intelligence and form the foundation needed for academic success.

Children learn by doing. Play is foundational to all other types of learning.
